Representative Experience:

- XYZ Insurance Company v. Boardwalk Condominium Association, Inc.
 - XYZ Insurance Company brought suit against its insured, Boardwalk Condominium Association, Inc., to recover overpayments made to Boardwalk in connection with claims for flood damage that Boardwalk had made under the policy issued to it by XYZ Insurance Company. Boardwalk's professional liability insurers, XYZ Insurance Company 2 and XYZ Insurance Company 3 both denied coverage to Boardwalk on the ground that the claim made against Boardwalk by XYZ Insurance Company for return of the overpayments was not a claim made during the policy periods of the respective claims-made policies issued by XYZ Insurance Company 2 and XYZ Insurance Company 3. On cross-motions for summary judgment, the District Court determined that the claim made by XYZ Insurance Company against Boardwalk was a claim that was made and reported during the term of the XYZ Insurance Company 2 policy and was not, therefore, reported during the term of the XYZ Insurance Company 3 policy.
- XYZ Insurance Company v. Suncoast Medical Clinic
 - XYZ Insurance Company issued a commercial general liability policy to its named insured, Suncoast Medical Clinic, LLC. A claim, and later suit, was brought against Suncoast by the Estate of Charles J. Ziolkowski for medical malpractice. In addition to the claim for medical malpractice, the complaint in the wrongful death lawsuit of the Ziolkowski Estate also alleged that Suncoast had failed, from an administrative standpoint, to have sufficient policies, procedures and staffing in effect so as to prevent the alleged acts of medical malpractice. XYZ Insurance Company's general liability policy contained a standard professional liability exclusion. XYZ Insurance Company, having offered to defend its insured under a reservation of rights, thereafter instituted an action for declaratory relief in the United State District Court, Middle District of Florida, Tampa Division, seeking a judicial declaration that coverage for the claim was precluded by the professional liability exclusion contained within its policy. In determining the issues raised on cross-motions for summary judgment filed by Suncoast and XYZ Insurance Company, the District Court, in a published opinion, determined that the professional liability exclusion was applicable and, therefore, no coverage for the claim was afforded under the XYZ Insurance Company policy.

- XYZ Insurance Company v. Montecito Renaissance, Inc.
 - XYZ Insurance Company issued a general liability insurance policy to its named insured, Montecito Investments, LLC. By endorsement, Montecito Renaissance, Inc. was listed as an additional insured under the policy. A lawsuit was brought against Montecito Renaissance by a condominium association, the Avalon at Clearwater Condominium Association, Inc., alleging various acts of negligence on the part of Montecito in connection with the conversion of the condominium's buildings and other infrastructure from apartments to a condominium. Colony instituted an action for declaratory relief against Montecito and, also, against the condominium association, Avalon, seeking a judicial declaration that various endorsements contained within the policy precluded coverage for the claims being asserted by Avalon against Montecito.
- After extensive discovery, XYZ Insurance Company filed a Motion for Summary Judgment arguing that the various causes of action alleged in the underlying litigation either did not constitute an "occurrence" under the policy, did not constitute "property damage" under the definitions of the policy, any "property damage" that did occur outside the term of the policy and, lastly, were excluded by virtue of an endorsement that precluded coverage for any construction-related activities in connection with condominium conversion. The court, in a lengthy opinion, determined that none of the 14 counts contained within the complaint filed against Montecito were covered under the policy since these causes of action either did not constitute an occurrence, did not constitute a claim for property damage, did not occur within the term of the policy or were otherwise excluded.
