The Naples office of Conroy Simberg joined the firm in 2013. The attorneys in this office are committed to delivering the same level of high-quality legal services and representation that our clients have long associated with the Conroy Simberg name. As seasoned litigators, these legal professionals bring a wealth of knowledge and depth of experience to our approximately 130-attorney firm.

Naples is known as one of the wealthiest cities in America and ranks among the most expensive real estate markets in the country. While tourism is the area's leading industry, real estate, construction, healthcare, finance and insurance, professional services and agriculture also represent major sectors of the region's economy.

The legal team in our Naples office represents large and small businesses, insurance carriers, self-insured organizations and other entities in complex insurance defense and commercial litigation matters. Our attorneys are well positioned to handle all types of civil matters, as well as workers' compensation matters. In every case, our Naples attorneys take the time to develop a clear understanding of our clients' business processes and procedures. We regularly consult with our attorneys working in our offices across the state to resolve cases quickly and efficiently while working to secure positive results for our clients.
