The Pensacola office of Conroy Simberg was opened in 1999. This office is uniquely positioned to meet the legal needs of clients living and operating in the City of Pensacola and the surrounding areas. Our attorneys regularly travel throughout this section of the state to serve the diverse demands of businesses, organizations and individuals that call the Pensacola region home.

Pensacola is a vibrant city in Florida's Panhandle with a growing industrial presence along the Gulf Coast. The city has long had a strong association with the military and hosts several military bases within the geographical area. Although the area's relationship with the military and associated contractors is strong, the city is diversifying into new job growth areas, including software development, aircraft maintenance, and manufacturing. Even with new industrial opportunities, tourism remains a strong component of the local economy with visitors coming from throughout the South.

The legal team in our Pensacola office delivers a complete range of legal services to insurance companies, businesses and professionals throughout the northwest area of the state. We represent clients across a wide range of industries, including tourism, hospitality, agriculture, and manufacturing.

We have developed a strong connection to the businesses and individuals in this region and several of our legal professionals have served on active duty in the military. While the attorneys in our Pensacola office have wide-ranging, multi-disciplinary legal experience, as part of the Conroy Simberg team, they regularly consult with attorneys in offices throughout our firm to provide seamless and consistent legal representation to clients in Pensacola.
