Located on the western coast of central Florida, Tampa is one of the state's largest cities. Its metropolitan area, known as the Tampa Bay area, is one of the largest metropolitan areas in the Southeastern United States. Combine a perfect climate and some of the nation's most popular attractions, and it is easy to understand why the Tampa Bay area is a favorite destination.

Tampa is home to MacDill Air Force Base and offers a diverse and growing economy. Major industries in the city and surrounding areas include tourism, construction, business and finance, technology, health care and agriculture.

In order to better meet the region's demand for highly skilled legal services, Conroy Simberg opened its Tampa office in 2003. This office aims to provide comprehensive legal services to insurance companies, businesses, professionals and other organizations in Tampa and the surrounding areas. The attorneys in our Tampa office represent a wide range of industries operating throughout the Tampa area and across Florida. We counsel and defend clients in all types of insurance defense and liability matters, ranging from insurance coverage and workers' compensation matters to commercial litigation and employment related claims.

The legal team in our Tampa location regularly consults and works with the approximately 130 attorneys in our firm's regional network of 13 legal offices to create innovative and cost-effective legal plans for our diverse client base. These legal professionals join together to deliver highly responsive and comprehensive legal representation to businesses, individuals and organizations in the Tampa region and surrounding areas.